Comment: Restricting the field of membership for credit unions restricts the credit unions' ability to serve their communities. Americans do not choose where they work, live and worship based off where the nearest credit union is, but instead on what makes the most sense for their families. A credit union is a vehicle that will enhance these good decisions made by Americans. Restricting field of membership will not allow Americans the choice to use a company and services that they feel will benefit them. In addition, restricting field of membership restricts growth in this industry, thus restricting the ability to create new positions for Americans looking for work. With so many politicians championing choice and job growth these days, why on earth would this restriction even be considered??? Politicians, will you give us more of the same, or actually make a decision that will benefit communities and American?
